TWENTY-SIXTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME (C)

September 28, 2025

The readings for today across the board, firmly warn us against being too obsessed with material goods and comfort. This over emphasis on the riches of the world all too easily steer us away from the things of God and as a result, causes selfishness, pride and arrogance. But the scriptures tell us even more: being too attached to riches can even make us forget of important issues in our own societies. Materialism in essence encloses us unto oneself, blinding us to what is truly good and true. It's time to re-commit to the everlasting things of heaven!!

Psalm Reflection

Lord God, Father of the orphan, protector of the stranger, and healer of every ill, hear our prayer: Grant that the experience of your compassion and kindness in our own lives may lead us in paths of generous service of our neighbor and to joyful trust in you, who live and reign forever and ever. Amen.
